Sweetwater Lane Park grading begins with help from private sector

Site preparations for the Sweetwater Lane Park began on June 10, 1989, as a result of contributions from a number of companies. Supervisor George Bailey announced that Home Capital, Hawthorne Machinery, Pointe Builders, Daley Corporation, Signs and Pinnick and El Dorato Engineering combined to provide needed grading plans, surveying, and staking, checking, management and equipment.

Representatives from these companies and community organizations seeking to revitalize Spring Valley met at the Sweetwater Lane Park site last Saturday to kick-off the grading project. Under the direction of Bob Summers, Vice President of Construction for Home Capital, a group of volunteer equipment operators utilizing equipment donated by Hawthorne Machinery cleared the site. Two additional weekends of work have been scheduled to complete the grading so that the site can be turned over to the Spring Valley Sports Council for construction of sports fields and park area.

Supervisor Bailey said, "This park site would lie unimproved and unused if these companies had not been willing to donate their services to such an important community effort. Families, children and others will enjoy this park for years to come. I want to thank them for their donated service to the community and the County and for the public service example which I hope other companies will follow. This is an excellent example of public, private and community cooperation."

Approximately 30,000 yards of material will be moved on the weekends of June 24-25 and July 8-9. The Daley Corporation will provide equipment for this phase. The value of the volunteered resources exceeds $80,000. Rancho San Diego Director of Operations, Mike Kennedy noted, "Home Capital, as a responsible corporate citizen, is pleased to contribute to needed improvements in the communities in which we are involved. This sports complex will contribute to the revitalization of Spring Valley and serve the surrounding community recreation needs also."

The 11-acre parcel was purchased in 1980 from the La Mesa-Spring Valley School District for $600,000 and subsequently made available for park uses. In April 1985, the County approved an agreement with the Spring Valley Sports Council to develop, operate and maintain a sportsfield complex on the site and make it available for public use. The County of San Diego has designed and constructed road and drainage improvements necessary for site development and access. County fiscal constraints make it impossible to fund site preparation and development at this time.

Lemon Grove Chamber of Commerce to oppose SDCWA water pipeline

Sanctioned by its board of directors, the Lemon Grove Chamber of Commerce government affairs committee voted unanimously Monday night to officially oppose a water-pipeline project planned by the San Diego County Water Authority (SDCWA).

Chamber President Nicholas Cappiello made the motion upon the conclusion of concerns voiced by several residents and business people.

The SDCWA proposes the installation of a 9-foot water pipe, requiring trenches up to 20 feet in width and depth, along Massachusetts Avenue south from 94, east on San Miguel and Palm Avenues, and south on Skyline Drive to Jamacha. The pipeline is to provide service to the lower Otay Reservoir.

Reasons cited to oppose the pipeline project included traffic disruption, a substantial loss of revenues to businesses in or near the construction route, significant inconvenience to residents and lack of benefit to the community.

Cappiello has directed letters of opposition to the SDCWA and to the Lemon Grove City Council.

Traffic citations reported by CHP and Lemon Grove Sheriff's Station

Through last week, 323 speeders had been cited in the East County so far this month by the California Highway Patrol.

In other offenses, 298 motorists failed to be buckled and 384 had no evidence of insurance.

Warning is offered to those with illegally tinted windows. 138 motorists were cited for that offense. CHP Captain Don Watkins stated that windshields and front seat side windows must be of clear glass.

In Lemon Grove, for the month-to-date, 236 speeders had been cited; 6 drivers under the influence were arrested; 82 had no evidence of insurance; and 30 were not properly buckled up.

Pointe Builders presents resort plans

Last Thursday night the Spring Valley Community Center was packed with nearly 200 local residents and business people anxious to hear the latest update on the plans to build The Pointe resort. The program was sponsored by the Spring Valley Citizen's Committee and the Spring Valley Chamber of Commerce, but the Pointe Builders, represented by Ric Williams, Vice President of Special Projects, and Tom Henry, Director of Planning & Engineering, were the main attraction.

The community center was transformed for the meeting with attractive displays and a giant movie screen.

The presentation, like the resort, was first class. Ric Williams was introduced by Willie Baker and then launched into his presentation, which included many slides of the famed Pointe resort in Phoenix, Arizona. After the sound and light show, Williams and Henry answered questions from the audience, collected and put forth by Pat Melega of the Spring Valley Citizen's Committee.

A primary concern was, "When will the building begin?" The company hopes to have plans approved by September and final approval from the Board of Supervisors by the end of 1989. If this schedule is met, construction should begin in May 1990, with completion of the initial phase 12 to 14 months later.

Other concerns expressed by the audience were about traffic problems and dust from ATV's using the property. However, in general, the crowd seemed to be anxiously waiting for The Pointe to be built so all could utilize its first class facilities which include: 654 guest suites, three restaurants, tennis, racquetball, fitness center, convention center, ballroom, golf, equestrian center, child care center and more.

The public will be kept abreast of any news on The Pointe through newsletters from The Spring Valley Citizen's Committee, this newspaper and public meetings.

Former Lemon Grove resident awarded Fulbright Grant

Thomas Whigham of the University of Georgia has been awarded a Fulbright Grant to lecture on Latin American History in Argentina, the Board of Foreign Scholarship and the United States Information Agency (USIA) announced recently.

Raised in Lemon Grove and a 1973 graduate of Mt. Miguel High School, Whigham received his undergraduate degree at the University of California at Santa Cruz. He later attended Stanford University where he received his doctoral degree in history in 1986. He is presently Assistant Professor of History at the University of Georgia. His research interests include the economic history of nineteenth-century Argentina, the social history of peasant groups, and the development of commerce in Paraguay. He has published widely on these subjects, with articles in Harvard's Business History Review, The Americas, the Revista Paraguaya de Sociologia, the Journal of Latin American Studies, and Latin American Research Review. He is presently working on a book-length manuscript on the history of Argentine and Paraguayan trade in 1780-1870 period.

Dr. Whigham is one of approximately 1,500 U.S. grantees who will travel abroad for the 1989-90 academic year under the Fulbright Program.

Established in 1946 under Congressional legislation introduced by former Senator J. William Fulbright of Arkansas, the program is designed to "increase mutual understanding between the people of the United States and the people of other countries." Under the Fulbright Program, approximately 5,000 grants are awarded each year to American students, teachers, and scholars to study, teach and conduct research to more than 130 countries around the world, and to foreign nationals to engage in similar activities in the United States. Individuals are selected on the basis of academic and professional qualifications plus their ability and willingness to share ideas and experiences with people of diverse cultures.

More than 167,000 "Fulbrighters," over 58,000 from the United States and 109,000 from abroad, have participated in the program since it began 43 years ago.

The program is administered by the U.S. Information Agency under policy guidelines established by the presidentially appointed Board of Foreign Scholarship (BFS) and in cooperation with a number of private organizations. Scholarships are awarded through open competition, with final selections made by the Board of Foreign Scholarships. Twenty-nine foreign governments share in the funding of these exchanges.

The U.S. Information Agency is an independent agency within the executive branch whose mission is to inform the people of other nations about American society and to provide opportunities for Americans to learn about the rest of the world.

San Diego Gilbert & Sullivan Company to present "The Pirates of Penzance"

The San Diego Gilbert and Sullivan Company will wind up its tenth full season of operettas by presenting the ever-popular hit, "The Pirates of Penzance," which will open on June 23 at the Casa del Prado Theatre in Balboa Park and play Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons through July 2.

Directed by Ginny-Lynn Safford, the production will feature Ed Hollingsworth as the menacing but soft-hearted Pirate King, the role he played in the Company's first production of Pirates in 1982. Also featured are William Murray as Major-General Stanley, (who is "the very model of a modern major-general"), and Beverly Park as his daughter Mabel. Michael Gangitano will play the part of young Frederic who has been serving as a pirate apprentice thanks to the understandable mistake his nursemaid Ruth made when instructed to apprentice the boy to a "pilot."

Company favorite Joseph Grienenberger returns as the Sergeant of Police, and Lee Vahlsing is the Pirate Lieutenant. Jeanne Reith, Florene Villane, Diana Larson and Donna O'Connell appear as Ruth, Kate, Edith and Isabel.

Supplying musical direction and conducting the twenty-two piece orchestra will be the Company's artistic director, Hollace Koman. Beca Lewis is the choreographer, costume design is by Cindy Cetinske, and lighting design is by Kenneth Ted Bible.

Written in 1879, "The Pirates of Penzance" (or, "The Slave of Duty") continues to enjoy its position as one of the most popular operettas in the English language.

The show's delightful cast of characters, including the outwardly fierce pirates and easily unnerved police, along with its audacious lampooning of the British monarchy, military and constabulary, (not to mention Italian Opera), combine to create a work which maintains its ability to draw enthusiastic audiences to this day.

Commentary

by Max Goodwin

What should we ask our President to do about the June 4 massacre of the Chinese people's uprising?

Because communism all over the world is in trouble, it would appear that giving aid to the suppressed element while making threats against the communistic masters might be apropos.

If we reflect on the opinion of Ronald Reagan, who offered his belief that communism is headed for "the dust bin of history," and within just a few months after the end of his presidency it was happening faster than he anticipated.

The Beijing demonstrations, crushed in bloody ferocity by the forces of Deng Xiaoping, leave little doubt that change has come to China.

Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, who has already moved Russia toward democracy, in a recent speech in China, called for greater democracy, saying, "Economic reform will not work unless supported by a radical transformation of the political system."

The release of the people of Poland may have taught him something.

The question then is what should the Bush administration and its Free World Allies do to hasten communism into the dustbin?

Some day the best way the West can help those struggling for freedom behind the Iron Curtain is to do nothing to avert the appearance of making freedom-seekers pawns of the CIA and the Western capitalistic establishment.

Others argue that U.S. aid to communist governments, even the ones trying to liberalize, ultimately props up the very system that should be allowed to collapse.

Then there are others who advocate total, all-out aid to support the dissidents, short of arms. Money, medicine, printing presses, copy machines and the U.S. Information Agency should be made available.

A noted author recently wrote, " . . .If we are truly aiming to induce the great Communist system to democratize, we must not help them surmount their crises while remaining Communist. Unless the sickness is allowed to run its course, they will never fundamentally change."

The West has a history of blessing half measures of reform in the Soviet bloc with outpourings of aid.

Aid should go to independent institutions dedicated to developing the tools for building a genuinely free society.

Whatever aid that is given should be examined closely to avert bolstering the power structure of communism, the force that has caused more misery than anything in history.

And "Dutch" Reagan will be on hand to hold open the dust bin."

From Where I Sit

by Frank Andrews

My late father was a good cook – not gourmet, but down-to-earth from the "Old School." During the depression days back in Minnesota, he could go to a near-empty refrigerator or pantry and come up with a delicious meal. Due to marital problems, my mother did not live at home much, so Pop and I had to fend for ourselves.

By necessity, I had to take my turn in the kitchen, so I learned how to cook at an early age. By learning to cook and loving it so much, I grew to my present rotund proportions.

My dad was a specialist in smoked foods. He started smoking fish in a wooden barrel, making a lowly Carp taste like Alaskan salmon. The wooden barrel was soon replaced with a walk-in type brick smokehouse. He then added ribs, chicken, turkey and beef to his smoke processing. The secret of the delicious flavor in the meat was from his dry seasoning and by using apple wood from the local orchards.

When prohibition ended in the early 30's, Dad obtained a beer route. He would smoke the ribs in the evening and deliver the beer and ribs to the 3.2 beer joints the next day. The tavern owner could then cool the beer, heat the ribs and serve a delicious combo. Pork spareribs were only 17 cents a pound from the packer, so he could just about give them free and make his profit on the beer.

Right after my stint in the service and needing a job or business, I approached my father. "Dad, if I start a bar-b-que restaurant, will you work for me and smoke the meat?"

Dad agreed, as he was getting along in years, and needed a little steady income. "I'll smoke the meat in my smokehouse, and deliver it to your restaurant when you need it."

My new bar-b-que venture really took off, but due to his failing health, poor old Dad just couldn't keep up with the demand for his mouth-watering meats. "Dad, you will have to show me how to make the seasonings so that I can help you," I told him.

He insisted, "If I keep the secrets, then I will always have a job with you."

His remark hurt me at the time, because I had worked side-by-side with him for so many years. I could have made his secret specialty items myself by trial and error, but I had to wait for him to divulge them to me.

I just could not understand why my father withheld his food processing secrets from me, but I finally understood when he dictated to my mother on his death bed all his formulas that could help me in my food business. It was his last "Will and Testament" to his only son.

At Issue:
Equity funding for Education

By Carol Bentley, Assemblywoman, 77th District

Last year language was placed in the budget providing resources to compile figures on the amount of State funds indiviual school districts receive. The results are in, and no one is surprised to learn that the large urban school districts receive far more money than rural and suburban districts.

How did this happen? Schools receive part of their revenues according to the Average Daily Attendance (ADA). The discrepancies come about by additional sources of funds based on complicated formulas. One source is categorical funding which provides funds for children with special educational needs.

The differences between the school districts is astounding. Los Angeles Unified receives $550 more per student per year than the Statewide average. Grossmont Union High School District receives $200 less per student per year than the Statewide average, or $750 less per student per year than Los Angeles. If Grossmont had the same ADA as Los Angeles it would receive an additional $14 million in funds.

Likewise, other districts are penalized. Cajon Valley is $320 under the state average and La Mesa Spring Valley is $270 below.

With the passage of Proposition 98 last year, (which commits 40 percent of the budget to education), and the new revenues recently announced, we have the perfect opportunity to provide some equity in funding for school districts.

Those of us in the Republican Caucus believe it is so important to provide equity funding that we have developed an allocation formula that provides additional revenues for the underfunded districts without penalizing overfunded districts.

When you see the drain Los Angeles puts on school funding and recall the recent settlement of their teacher strike, resulting in a 24 percent increase in salaries over three years, you know the inequities will get worse. You can understand why Republicans withheld votes on the budget until a compromise on equity funding is reached.

Letters from our readers

Heart-felt thanks

This letter is overdue, but I mistakenly sent it to the SD papers, as they are delivered to me by a thoughtful carrier.

I wanted EVERYONE to know how many caring people there were, and the ideas of long-lashed llamas cavorting in my pulsating town raised my spirits.

During Mother's Day and Old Time Days celebrations, I was near a bank's parking lot moving with action. Loving music and dancing, I could just be placed in a chair by caring strangers, as my companion wiggled to the crowd, dancing with anyone who came near. Others came to me – hairdressers I knew, one bringing me a hot dog and coffee. I had worn a heavy coat.

When the rocking band stopped around 11 p.m., some members came and lifted me to the car which brought me and my companion home.

The warmth and wonder of all this still helps. I hope you will publish this so that those who did not realize, will accept my thanks and heart-felt gratitude. My 2-fingered typing will enable me to return to my free lance writing.

Happy tears in closing,

Action urged on proposed pipeline

By Mark O'Rourke

The San Diego Water Authority (SDCWA) is planning a project which is to cut through the very heart of Lemon Grove and disrupt the lives and livelihoods of hundreds of people for many months – as long as two years.

The proposed construction of a 9-foot diameter water pipeline will require a 15 to 20-foot-wide trench along the portion of Massachusetts Avenue that intersects with Broadway. The planned trenching continues south to San Miguel Avenue, then east along San Miguel and Palm Avenues to Skyline Drive, and south to Jamacha.

Lest mid-town businesses and residents believe that they are removed from the inconvenience of the project, an alignment alternative to that of Massachusetts, takes the pipeline from La Mesa, south on Buena Vista to San Miguel, Palm Avenue, east of Skyline, is also considered a valid alternate route by SDCWA.

The pipeline's purpose is to serve water to the yet undeveloped Otay Mesa area, and will be of little benefit, if any, to Lemon Grove.

Traffic will be disrupted, block by block. Emergency vehicles will be seriously hampered in reaching their destination. Water service is likely to be shut off for hours at a time, forcing many businesses to close during daytime hours, and creating discomfort for residents. Residents will have to park a block or more from their homes. Project documents state that excavated soils will be stored in front yards, but that there will be "no significant impact" because the occupants will "be compensated." The construction plans also address blasting, but don't specify areas, stating that the concussions will be of a strength only to upset table lamps and other small household items.

As a businessman, I am earnestly opposed to the proposed pipeline which will certainly create customer avoidance of the affected commercial areas, and may spell doom to new or smaller businesses.

As a resident, I am opposed to any project which will again produce significant traffic hazards and confusion like that we've experienced with the construction of Lemon Grove Plaza and the trolley line. At least those projects bring benefits to Lemon Grove. The pipeline won't. Lemon Grove deserves a reprieve.

A large group of business people have joined me in opposition, as have a number of residents. More are joining in this effort, daily, to turn the pipeline before it reaches Lemon Grove.

It is important to understand that the San Diego County Water Authority possesses jurisdiction which supercedes that of our City Council. The council members are unhappy about the proposed project, but they need mass public support in order to strengthen their position of opposition. My wife, Councilwoman Karen O' Rourke, and Councilman Brian Cochran have exhibited active opposition to the pipeline, and may be telephoned at City Hall, 464-6934. Without public support, there is little our City Council can do to halt this project.

I urge all Lemon Grove business people and residents to write today in opposition to the WESTERN ALIGNMENT OF THE OTAY MESA PIPELINE. On July 13, the board of directors of SDCWA will make its final decision to approve the pipeline route to be used.

The western alignment is considered by the SDCWA to be the preferred alignment, superior to other alternatives which lie east of Lemon Grove city limits.

Please direct letters to: Members of the Board of Directors, San Diego County Water Authority, 2750 Fourth Avenue, San Diego, CA 92103-6295, with a copy to: Mayor James V. Dorman & Councilmembers, Lemon Grove City Hall, 3232 Main Street, Lemon Grove, CA 92045.

Cub Scout Pack 399 ends year with Crossover Ceremony at Lemon Grove Middle School Auditorium

Indian chiefs and braves were seen by Cub Scouts and families on Friday, June 2 at the Lemon Grove Middle School Auditorium, as ceremonies took place to complete this year for the Pack. Honored guested included family members as well as Boy Scouts and Scoutmasters from Troops 108 and 168 in Lemon Grove.

This particular evening is special to the Pack as a "Crossover" Ceremony takes place for graduating Webelos scouts. This year, the Pack is honored to send our Boy Scout Troops six Cub Scouts who have fulfilled not only the requirements to be a Webelos scout . . . but have also earned the highest award a Cub Scout can receive, the Arrow of Light Award!

With arrows made personally by each scout representing the years in Cub Scouting, an Indian medicine bag to carry with them and a Boy Scout handbook, these boys walked over the Arrow of Light bridge to be received by their respective Scoutmasters.

We are proud of: Aaron Williams, Chad Cooper, Craig Kaelin, Rusty Lloyd, Chris McCarthy and Lee Orsino. We congratulate them and the families that support them, without which it would not have been possible. We also extend a warm "Thanks" to the departing Webelos leaders for these boys, Mr. Steve Williams and Mr. Dan McCarthy for all they have done for the boys and the Pack. Good luck to them all and GOOD SCOUTING!

The Pack is sponsored by the Lemon Grove Kiwanis and boasts about 60 boys from 1st grade Tiger Cubs to 5th grade Webelos scouts. For further information, call Cubmaster Carol McCarthy, 466-5632.

Mount Miguel Chess Club winning honors at local tournaments

By Norma Alonzo

Mt Miguel High School has introduced yet another winning team to their campus. The Chess Club, which was begun in 1987 by Dan Howard, Chess Club Advisor, is relatively unknown, yet has proven to be an impressive stronghold for the Matadors.

Of the four tournaments played during the last two years, Mt. Miguel's Chess team has risen to the top against their only contender – El Cajon. This year's first tournament ended in a tie. The second, which was held on June 1 at Mt. Miguel, began with El Cajon taking a 3-0 lead, but with the strength of such players as John Redman and Ray Turkette, the Matadors came back to win with a final score of 10-7.

Says Howard, "I'm very satisfied with the quality rather than the quantity of players right now. I'm not working on a bigger club; rather, I would like to see more involvement from schools in the district, other than Mt. Miguel and El Cajon. I hope to one day be able to involve a Grossmont District team with a cultural exchange competition in Russia."

An average of 20 faithful gather each day at lunch to test and strengthen their playing skills. Unfortunately, not all students have the patience and intensity to be a chess player. This may be one of the reasons for the lack of publicity the club receives.

"It's a competition for the intellect," says Howard. "Chess is a very challenging sport – a mental sport. Playing takes not only skill, but a lot of creativeness and really tests a person's intuitive strength."

So why do students choose to get involved with such an arduous pastime?

Says player, Rober Harget, "We play chess for the fun and challenge of the game, and also for a little friendly competition."

Students pay tribute to former Mount Miguel English teacher with memorial scholarship

By Norma Alonzo

When George Albert passed away in the fall of 1987, he left a legacy to Mount Miguel High School that no one was likely to forget. The George Albert Memorial Fund was begun in memory of the Mount Miguel teacher who had dedicated his life to inspiring students with his love for English.

Graduating seniors from the Grossmont Union High School district with a 3.0 GPA or higher and who have been enrolled in English for all four years of high school, are eligible to submit an original piece of writing for the $250 scholarship. The categories are: short story, non-fiction, drama and poetry. The Sitting Committee from Mount Miguel consists of Annette Stamos, Bob Windrem, Jack Gormley and June Mott. The entries will be judged on creativity, style, originality, form, structure, use of English, ideas and expression, communication and clarity of purpose.

This year, 30 poems and 8 short stories were submitted. Susan Green of El Cajon High School, the Features Editor of her school newspaper and a commissioner in A.S.B., won with her poem, "Blanket of Peace." Eureka Easterly of El Capitan High School, who is involved with a very demanding G.A.T.E. class, the academic decathlon and the El Capitan Literary Magazine, won with her short story, "The Game's the Important Thing."

When asked what made these two entries unique, Annette Stamos of the Sitting Committee replied, "They were so engrossing and the quality and strength set them apart. But, most importantly, they were written in the spirit Mr. Albert would have had them written in ."

One student's view...

By Michael Swanson, Mt. Miguel

Recently, I have become real worried about gang-related incidents in both Spring Valley and Lemon Grove. Gangs began to form in East LA in the late 1970's. Then they expanded to other poor neighborhoods in large cities. And now the gangs are expanding to the suburbs of large cities.

Spring Valley and Lemon Grove have at least two gangs that I know of, and others are presently forming. I know that the gangs bring the kids a sense of unity. It would be alright if the teenagers didn't break the law. Burglary was up 14% more than last year while auto theft was up 9%. These crimes and many more are rising as the gangs grow.

I am not blaming all the increasing crimes directly on the gangs, but they are a major cause of it. Let's keep the streets safe. The police should crack down more on cases related to gangs.

Family fun for Father's Day at La Mesa gala

La Mesa hasn't seen its like since 1892: "In The Good Old Summertime," the La Mesa Trolley Celebration rediscovers La Mesa's past and welcomes the future of public transportation in one glorious hometown afternoon!

Music, exhibits, entertainments and novelties will greet the very first trolley to open its doors to an eager local public on Sunday, June 18th at 2 p.m. "In The Good Old Summertime," presented by La Mesa Cultural Arts is the perfect family Father's Day outing.

The 180-passenger trolley car will travel continuously between Spring Street Station (at Highway 94) and the Severin and Amaya Streets station from 2-5 p.m. that afternoon. The trolley completes one round-trip every 1/2 hour, with stops at Spring Street, La Mesa Depot, Grossmont Center and Severin at Amaya. Purchase of a FIRST DAY RIDER souvenir badge provides unlimited trolley access during the afternoon.

Regular service begins one week later; Sunday's riders will be the La Mesa route's inaugural passengers. The badges, which double as admission tickets to the entire event, cost $5 for adults, $2.50 for children ages 3-15, with a special family rate of $15 (parents and children only).

Each station features special entertainment, displays and refreshments. "In the Good Old Summertime" musical groups include La Mesans Steve and Bill Zarp on country strings, the Sweatermen barbershop quartet (of La Mesa Middle School faculty fame), the Lamplighters Community Theatre cast from "Gypsy," Estaban and Kristina with Songs from Many Lands, SDSU Musical Theatre songstress Pam Denning, and a five-piece Dixieland band.

Among the exhibits are the La Mesa Fire Department's vintage Water Engine and modern Rescue Truck, La Mesa Depot's Railroad Museum, Foothills Art Association, the San Diego Carvers Guild and the La Mesa Historical Society.

Special entertainment for children features renowned La Mesa magician Craig Stone's prestidigitation and Magic Clown Penny Bubblegum's puppetry and balloon animals.

Everyone can try to win at the old-fashioned cakewalk – bring a cake to contribute to the prize collection and get three cakewalk chances. Or, join the costume contest as cowboy, Gibson Girl, train conductor, Indian princess – anyone who might have visited La Mesa when the railroad came in the 1890's. Popcorn, lemonade, hot dogs and more will be available.

"In The Good Old Summertime" benefits the Cultural Arts Program of the Parks and Recreation Department, which offers more than 60 local cultural activities per year, most of them without charge, for families, seniors, schoolchildren, artists and other La Mesans.

Tickets can be purchased at the La Mesa Community Center, MacArthur Park, 4965 Memorial Drive, (469-4128), or, on Sunday, June 18, at the four trolley depots between 2-5 p.m.

"Pink Cadillac"

Don't do it! No matter how bored you are, no matter how much time you have to spare, no matter how much extra money is in your pocket, please, don't do it! Do not, under any circumstances, even with free admission, waste your time on Pink Cadillac, or you will regret it as much as I did.

The film which stars Clint Eastwood as bounty hunter Tommy Nowak and Bernadette Peters as the fugitive Lou Ann McGuinn, is just plain boring and the screenplay is . . . how should I put it . . . awful. Cadillac is filled with every "action-flick" cliche and its characters are nothing more than shallow stereotypes. From the frowning, gravel-voiced Nowak to the blond bimbo McGuinn, the characters prove not only to be common, but dull.

The script is jam-packed with what I think were meant to be jokes. Nowak and McGuinn each take turns dropping these "one-liners," usually after something pointless and incredibly violent has just happened. In one instance, Nowak forces one of the bad guys to drive a car through the front window of a casino in Reno, wreaking incredible havoc. Quipped McGuinn, "Wow, it's a contact sport!" Ha, ha. Please stop, I can't control my laughter.

There is one small moment of relief in the audience's drudgery, however, with the cameo appearance of Geoffrey Lewis, (whom you will recognize from many of Eastwood's prior films), as Ricky Z., the fake-I.D. artist. Lewis is practically the only likable character in the entire film . . . and the only one who's funny. His crazed portrayal of the maniacal Ricky, who assists Nowak in tracking a militant group of white supremacists, is the only recognizable reason for laughter.

Pink Cadillac is directed by Buddy Van Horn, unknown to me until now, and judging from Cadillac's quality, I don't think Buddy has to worry about fighting off many eager producers with million-dollar contracts. This one's not going to blow over for quite a while.

The film comes to its climax with Nowak and McGuinn, armed with only two hand grenades and a single pistol, fighting off about 30 racists with automatic weapons. If anyone in the audience had a hard time believing they could pull it off, (as I did), they should just remember that small bit of dialogue spoken by Mr. Eastwood himself about halfway through the picture. Said Clint, "This is sooooo wrong!"

If he was talking about Pink Cadillac, truer words were never spoken.

Reigning "Official Greeter" to bid his last hellos in zoo tribute week

He's welcomed millions over the last 64 years. Now he has one week to say goodbye.

The San Diego Zoo marks the end of an era with "King Tut Appreciation Days," from June 9-16, honoring the aging salmon-crested cockatoo who, since 1925, has been the Zoo's "official greeter."

Some 100 million Zoo visitors over the years have delighted in King Tut's cackles and calls, preening and prancing from his perch at the Zoo entrance. Today the Zoo's most beloved bird suffers from arthritis, has cataracts in both eyes and is bullied by peacocks, pigeons and free-ranging jungle fowl.

"King Tut still loves people. He's the friendliest bird I've ever known," said Jerry Gallenberger, Tut's keeper for the last 17 years. "And a lot of people love Tut. They'll be sad to see he's gone."

The Zoo plans to retire King Tut to a cushy indoor job – a second career in its Education Department.

During "King Tut Appreciation Days," Gallenberger and King Tut will hold court at Tut's perch, allowing well-wishers a last chance to take pictures, ask questions and perhaps pet the cockatoo, if the King's in the mood. King Tut and his keeper will meet the public from 10 to 11 a.m. and from 2 to 3 p.m. each day from June 9-16.

On King Tut's last day as official greeter, June 16, his keepers will present him with a pound cake, his favorite treat, at 3 p.m.

On June 17, King Tut will be the guest of honor at the annual Rendezvous In The Zoo, a black-tie dinner and dance under the stars at the Zoo. Tickets to the fundraiser, billed as King Tut's retirement party, are $250 a plate.

"King Tut's arthritis has progressed to where we can only have him out on warm and dry days," said Wayne Schulenburg, the Zoo's animal care manager for birds. "Because he's blind, Tut occasionally gets bumped off his perch by peacocks and other free-ranging birds in the Zoo."

Cockatoos have been know to live well into their seventies.

"Working with our education programs is the perfect new job for King Tut," Schulenburg said. "He'll still have contact with the keepers and the people he loves. He'll be able to stay warm and develop a day-to-day routine he'll be most comfortable with."

Waiting in the wings to replace King Tut as the Zoo's official greeter is Teddy, a five-year-old bird, who was raised by a woman and donated to the zoo. Like King Tut, Teddy is a salmon-crested cockatoo.

King Tut was purchased in Singapore in 1925 by adventurer Frank "Bring 'Em Back Alive" Buck. The bird was sold to Mr. and Mrs. Ira Putnam of La Mesa, private bird collectors and friends of the fledgling San Diego Zoo. The Putnams named their cockatoo King Tut because his arrival coincided with discovery of King Tutankhamon's tomb in Egypt.

King Tut divided his time between the Putnam Ranch and the Zoo in early years. He learned to sing, whistle and talk. Over the years, King Tut performed at the Old Globe, the Starlight Opera and with fan dancer Sally Rand at the 1935-36 California Pacific International Exposition in Balboa Park. King Tut came to the Zoo to stay in 1951.

Since King Tut was an adult when he arrived in San Diego in 1925, his exact age is unknown, but he is believed to be at least 66-years old.

Construction under way on new McMillin Realty East County office in Rancho San Diego

Construction is under way on the new East County Office of McMillin Realty at Plaza Rancho San Diego, 2916 Jamacha Road, announced Scott McMillin, president.

The 4,000-square-foot, single-level Mediterranean-styled office building will include spaces for 40 real estate professionals and supporting staff. The free-standing building is being built for McMillin by Environs West, developer of Plaza Rancho San Diego. McMillin has taken a five-year lease on the property.

Completion of work and occupancy is scheduled for August, according to Dorothy Kirk, manager of the East County office of McMillin Realty, currently located in a smaller office at the neighborhood shopping center.

Kirk says she currently has a staff of 20 licensed associates and is aggressively recruiting both beginning and experienced sales agents to reach the new office's capacity of 40.

"We're looking for energetic, success-oriented individuals who'd like to be associated with San Diego's fastest growing brokerage, backed by the strength and reputation of the McMillin Companies," Kirk said.

McMillin Realty, headquartered in National City, is the sales and marketing arm of the multi-faceted McMillin Companies as well as San Diego County's largest independent residential resale firm. McMillin Realty was recently ranked 43rd in the United States among independent realty firms by a leading industry journal, the only San Diego company listed in the top 50.

Blind fishing revisited

In our May 25th issue, we published an article about the Blind Recreation Center's monthly fishing trips to Lake Jennings. In the article, we heaped praise on San Diego Gas and Electric Company for building the fishing pier enjoyed by the fishermen. Well, the people at the Helix Water District have rightfully taken offense at our error.

According to the 1986-87 Helix Water District Annual Report, "The idea for developing the float and the original exploration of grant funds to build it was the brainchild of Don Gauthier when he was supervising the lake. Subsequently, grants totalling $145,200 were obtained from the Wildlife Conservation Board by Bob Rivera, present Lake Supervisor, and other staff."

And the account goes on to say, "Thursday, June 18th, Retired Director Bob Rundell was on hand when the Lake Jennings Public Fishing Access was officially dedicated in his honor."

"The move to add the extra day of fishing (for the Blind Recreation Center) was made by the Board at the suggestion of Larry Hall, maintenance and construction supervisor for San Diego Gas and Electric Company. Larry and other SDG&E employees serve as sighted volunteers, sought donations and even helped install required lighting for the fishing float."

We apologize to the Helix Water District and its many employees who worked to make the pier a reality. We also want to credit Larry Hall and the SDG&E people for helping. The pier remains, in spite of our error, a wonderful facility for the public, and one day a month, a joy for blind recreationists.

Sports Commentary

By John E. Wirges

It doesn't necessarily take genius to prompt an invitation to test a brand-new, blue blood, prestigious golf layout in the name of honoring a friend, but genius certainly helps.

San Diego Press Clubbers are a pretty ingenious lot and are rightfully known for seldom missing a chance to knock off at least a pair of birds with each fling of a rock.

Such was the case when Press Clubbers gathered to bid Godspeed and bon voyage to Jan Manning on her well-deserved retirement from a near-lifetime of secretarial pursuits at the San Diego Union.

Jan is more than another pretty face. She keeps participles in place, never splits an infinitive and is death on dangling modifiers. She also plays a pretty solid game of golf.

What better chance to parlay a peek at San Diego's newest entry in the lavish links derby, than to hold a "Farewell Fling" for Jan at the splendid, swank and posh Rancho Santa Fe Farms Country Club? What better way, indeed.

Press Club stalwarts Andy Mace, Will Parry and Charlie Sick called Tommy Jacobs, Director of Golf at Rancho Santa Fe Farms, and presented their case.

Tommy, a long-time Press Club friend after 30 years of professional tournament play, 15 years as Director of Golf at La Costa Country Club, and a host-pro for the MONY Tournament of Champions, was delighted to extend an invitation to stage the Jan Manning "Clambake" and provide Press Clubbers a chance to play on his brand-new, Pete Dye designed, old-style links course.

The "Clambake," needless to say, was a smashing success. Jan was checked into retirement in grand style and "The Farms" proved to be an exceptional challenge.

First, there is no rough. There is only tee, green fairway, water and 6-foot-tall heather. If you are not in the fairway, you are on the green or lost.

One does not keep score at "The Farms." One keeps count of lost balls. Anything less than a dozen is considered under par.

To keep things in some kind of handicapping order, there are 5 sets of tees, giving the course a range of nearly 7,000 yards from the championship tees to 4,800 yards from tees used by novice ladies, old men, the sick, the lame and the lazy.

The course doesn't play long. It just plays tricky. On the 15th, a short 387-yard, par 4 hole, for example, one drives up a hill and hits the approach shot blind over the crest to a small green surrounded by bunkers, heather and water.

And that's one of the "easy" holes. It is followed by a 200-yard, par 3 challenge that is all carry from tee to green. The rest is water, all the way – and 6-foot tall heather in back.

In years to come, Rancho Santa Fe Farms could host such prestigious events as the Western, or even the U.S. Open.

But mostly, it will be a members course. And it's very private. We'll hear about it, though. After 3 years of hard labor, Tommy is letting nature lend a hand and he's taking some time off to tee it up on the PGA Senior Tour.

Among the many pleasures Press Clubbers enjoyed playing "The Farms" was the delight in just keeping the ball in play.

Lessons like that should certainly help Tommy pick up some serious change on the PGA Senior Tour. Never mind the lost balls.

Spring Valley Crunchers place second in softball tournament in Garden Grove

A succesful softball team has many ingredients, but none more important than each player playing the team concept. The Crunchers placed second in a highly competitive tournament in Garden Grove this past weekend with every team member contributing to that success.

Lisa Perettie pitched a 4-hitter and had the game winning RBI's beating Tsunami 3-1. In game two, Alison Brickner scattered 5 hits and shut out the Colorado Stars 8-0. Cathy Slatinsky had the game winning RBI. Amy Dawson and Linh Darnell combined on a one hitter and 12 strike outs in game 3, beating the Diamond Busters 8-0. Amy Dawson had the game winning RBI and catcher Erika Jonte had 2 RBI's.

Going against the National Champion Batbusters was a real challenge, but Busters broke up the scoreless game and scored all 5 runs in the sixth to win 5-0. Crunchers only threat was when Alison Brickner, who had doubled, was thrown out at home trying to score on Lisa Perettie's single.

In the game for second place, Amy Dawson pitched 8 hitless innings before the International Tie-Breaker went into effect. In the international tie-breaker, Crunchers first drew blood when Lisa Mora was placed at second and Alison Brickner drover her home with a triple in the top of the 9th. Gold Sox answered with a run in the bottom of the 9th. In the top of the 10th, the Crunchers scored 4 runs with Michelle Gomez driving in the winning run with a triple. Angie Davenport, Alison Brickner and Lisa Perettie all contributed RBI's. Lisa Mora had the game-saving diving catch of a screeching line drive in the bottom of the 8th. Crunchers emerged the 5-2 winner in a true championship game.

Coaches Sherie Riley, John Brickner and Ralph Mora credited great defensive plays by left fielder Lisa Wall, third baseman Angie Davenport, shortstop Cathy Slatinsky, center fielder Lisa Mora and catcher Lisa Wilson for a big part in the success of the Crunchers. "These tournaments help us to see where we need to go to work," said manager Grace Brickner. "We feel we can earn a berth to Nationals in Sioux Falls with the chemistry and talent we have on this team. This is the third year that most of us have played together. We have a great teaching staff and great work ethic among the girls."

The Crunchers travel to Las Vegas for their next tourney. This has always been a highly competitive weekend. They will leave on Friday, June 23.

Just as the cost of everything has skyrocketed, the Crunchers feel that same crunch. Anyone interested in sponsoring a fine softball program should contact Grace Brickner at 697-1096. You are invited to meet these young ladies, California's 1988 18-Under Champions, at a fundraiser June 20, Tuesday, at Round Table Pizza on Campo Road in Casa de Oro between 6-8 p.m.

Professional boxing events return to El Cortez Center with junior middleweight headliner bout

Las Vegas-style professional boxing returns this week to El Cortez Convention Center when Pro-Box Promotions holds its every-third Thursday card.

The main event is a 10-round junior middleweight scrap which promises to be exciting. It pits San Diego's KO artist, Richard "The Warrior" Aguirre (15-3-2, 11 KO's against Carlton "The Fly" Brooks (10-4).

An 8-round semi-main cruiserweight fight features Andre "The Boss" Smith (13-1), 7 KO's) against Matthew Brooks of Houston (10-3, 6 KO's).

In a 6-round middleweight scrap, Leroy Owens of Campo (6-1) meets Erwin Brown of San Jose (5-6-3) and a 4-round lightheavyweight bout has Felipo D'Amelo of National City facing Rocky Easterlin of Oceanside. Both are making their professional debuts.

In addition, there's a preliminary bout and the popular card girls.

Opening bout is at 7:30 p.m. Food and liquor is served. Phone 470-7300 for tickets or information.

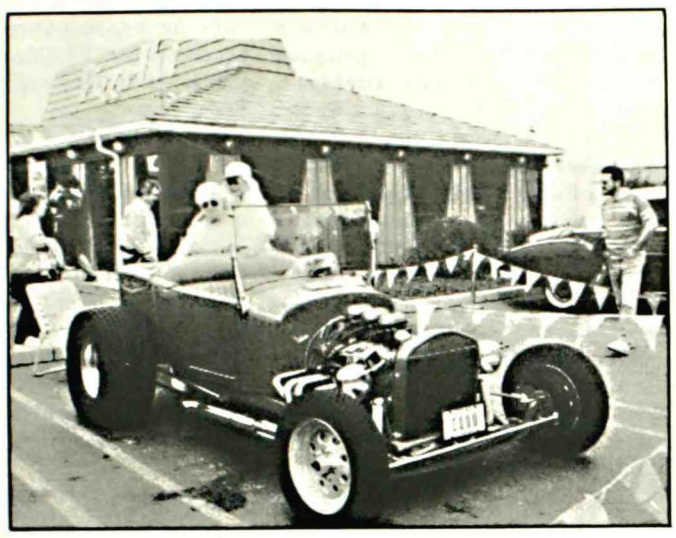
The Sixth Annual Oldies but Goodies Car Show raises money for Valley Grove Senior Centers

The Sixth Annual Oldies but Goodies Car Show was held June 11th outside the Spring Valley Pizza Hut at 1025 Sweetwater Road. The car clubs, Pizza Hut and the Valley Grove Nutrituon Center Board sponsor the event to help raise money for the Valley Grove Senior Centers at 3146 School Lane in Lemon Grove and at the Spring Valley Community Center on Jamacha Blvd. in Spring Valley.



A crowd of around 500 consumed 100 pizzas between 11 a.m. and 4 p.m., according to Lourdes Contreras of the Nutrition Center. She attributes the success of the event to the many volunteers who helped throughout the day. Live music was provided by Ruthie and the Cruisers.

The Senior Centers provide 1,500 noon meals per month, 900 home-delivered meals per month, and day care services for 26 seniors per day.

28,000 attend Jehovah's Witness rally at stadium

Several hundred Witnesses of the Lemon Grove, La Mesa and Spring Valley congregations were among the 27,944 present last Sunday at San Diego Jack Murphy Stadium to hear a public address, "Deliverance Near for People of Godly Devotion!", the highlight of a three-day "Godly Devotion" District Convention of Jehovah's Witnesses.

Saturday morning during a baptismal ceremony in right field, 233 new ministers were ordained when they were immersed in water in a special pool.

On Friday, the Witnesses were delighted to receive a new 32-page brochure, "Should You Believe in the Trinity?" and a new 320-page, pocket-size book entitled, "Questions Young People Ask – Answers That Work," a free copy which was given to some 2,500 persons between 10 and 19 years of age. Saturday saw the release of a new 192-page study book, "The Bible – God's Word or Man's?"

The San Diego event is one of 133 conventions being held throughout this summer in the United States and Bermuda in nine different languages, during which time, 1,360,000 delegates are expected.

Witnesses came from San Diego, Imperial, Orange and Riverside counties to hear 15 hours of lecture and discussion, including a true-life drama, designed to help parents and teenagers cope with the mounting pressures and problems of everyday living by applying the practical principles from the Bible. Several delegates were present from American Samoa, Africa and England.

Lemon Grove, La Mesa, and Spring Valley Witnesses were well-represented among the group of 3,000 volunteer workers that cleaned the Stadium before and after the convention, as well as serving as attendants and operating the departments of traffic control, security and food service.

Vacation Bible School dates set for summer

Ann Rones, director, said, "We welcome all youngsters of this age grouping whether they are members of the church or not. We want to make vacation time meaningful to these little ones and, at the same time, help to make a significant difference in their lives."

Monthly dances held at Spring Valley Community Center

Cabbies honored

At a party and award ceremony for San Diego tax cab drivers held at Fat City Cafe & Bar June 12, Howard Miller from Loma Portal was named "Cab Driver of the Year."

Brutas Brown of Lemon Grove was one of four runners-up, and Robert Aguirre of La Mesa won Honorable Mention.

The event was sponsored by the Convention & Visitors Bureau to recognize cab drivers as ambassadors of the city.

"Echoes" takes first at Del Mar

By Tish Baird

The Foothill Echoes Monday regained its No. 1 ranking as San Diego County's best high school newspaper, a title it had relinquished in 1988 and earlier this year to Montgomery's Moctezuman.

The Echoes was judged the "best of show" among the 11 schools whose newspaper staff chose to enter their publication in this year's Del Mar Fair, and editors will accept their trophy for producing the County's "best overall newspaper" at a breakfast later this month.

In addition to this award, all Echoes' page editors will receive a plaque recognizing them for the excellence of their individual coverage of news, editorials, features and sports. The Echoes swept its competition in these four writing categories.

"I'm delighted that the students' efforts have been acknowledged," Echoes advisor Geoffrey Anderson enthused. "This is the first year the Del Mar Fair has sponsored this competition and I believe it's a truer measure – coming later in the year as it does than the traditional Journalism Education Association rankings, which are usually assigned in early March – of just what the students have learned."

Professional journalists used a Danish System whereby the better entries of each of six categories receive blue ribbons, with the best entry of each category being awarded a plaque. The Echoes received six blue ribbons.

"The newspapers that were recognized at the Fair have traditionally done well in our annual JEA rankings," Anderson said. "There really were no surprises."

The Echoes was the County's No. 1 high school newspaper in 1981, 1983-87, and No. 2 in 1980, 1982 and 1988, but had lost a tie-breaker earlier this year and slipped to No. 3 in the JEA rankings.

"It's nice to be back on top," observed Editor-in-Chief Brett Davis, a three-year Echoes staff member.

Retired teachers award scholarship to Donofero and select new officers

A computer expert with a degree in Business Administration, Mike Donofero decided that because of his love for children, he would rather become an elementary school teacher. Donofero set up a computer lab at the Lindberg Elementary School in Clairmont, and in the process, he discovered the joy of working with children.

Donofero is now in the process of completing his student teaching in a 4th and 5th grade classroom, and of course, he is utilizing computers. Because he was so highly recommended by all those with whom he has worked, the East County San Diego Retired Teachers Association will present Mr. Donofero a $500 scholarship at their June 15 luncheon meeting at the First United Methodist Church of La Mesa, corner of Palm and Lemon Avenues in La Mesa.

The meeting will begin at 10 a.m. and will include the installation of officers. The new officers are: June Mott, president; Lockey Palermo and Ethel Dean, 2nd vice presidents; Louella Yannaccone, recording secretary; and Antonette Fusco, corresponding secretary.

For further information, call Wayne Griffith, 460-9261.
